HEALTH & SALE/ADOPTION AGREEMENT

To the best of our knowledge, and for you to have verified by your own Veterinarian within 72 hours, this purebred registered Yorkie puppy at this time of sale/adoption and before us and identified below, is happy and healthy. Yorkie Kids is providing this puppy as a "pet quality" for the purpose of a "family pet" and further providing the original purchaser/adopter lifetime emergency rehoming assistance with the understanding for whatever reason that if this Yorkie cannot be kept, buyer/adopter may contact Yorkie Kids first to help find placement.

The buyer/adopter agrees to take this puppy to a licensed veterinarian of their own choice and expense for a health checkup within a 72 hour period after acceptance and to provide Yorkie Kids the results of that checkup if any issues are found. If health issues are found by the Veterinarian within that time period, with a written statement from that vet you may exchange your puppy for one in like, kind and value. No cash refunds will be provided. This health guarantee does not include health issues due to accident or environment after the sale/adoption. If the required health checkup is not performed by a licensed veterinarian within the 72 hour period, the buyer/adopter accepts all responsibilities and is deemed to have accepted the puppy "as is".

Buyer/Adopter further agrees to provide routine veterinary care, such as proper vaccinations, annual veterinary checkups, worm checks and/or dewormings, heartworm preventatives and to care for the health and well-being of this Yorkie puppy.

Your small puppy is a baby and the smaller the puppy the more susceptible to the stresses and strains of any new home. Hypoglycemia, better known as low blood sugar, is a condition where glucose levels drops dangerously low and is especially a threat in very small puppies. Although hypoglycemia can be an illness due to other underlying health conditions, but especially in younger smaller healthy puppies, hypoglycemia may be environmentally induced through stresses and the lack of food intake. You should be feeding small amounts at a time, maybe 3 or 4 times a day, instead of one or two large meals a day. So a small meal every 4 hours or so should be about right for your puppy. If your puppy isn't eating properly you might try feeding some type of a high-calorie dietary supplement used for stressed or debilitated pets, off your fingers. Several small meals, maybe four hours apart throughout the day instead of one or two large meals is a deterrent to hypoglycemia. Stress from any cause increases the body's demand for sugar. Long periods of running, jumping, playing, maybe the stress of a long trip, all coupled with lack of food intake is a recipe for a potential hypoglycemia attack in these young tiny puppies. Without adequate amounts of glucose, your puppy cannot function properly and in severe cases, hypoglycemia can cause loss of consciousness, coma, and even death. If you see any symptoms as listed below your puppy may be suffering from hypoglycemia.

- Stupor
- Listlessness
- Weakness
- Severe depression

In the case of a hypoglycemia emergency, if your puppy cannot or will not eat, you might consider a direct application to the gums, which will absorb the sugar, of one of the below items you may have available:

- Karosyrup
- Honey
- Fruit Juices
- Cola (e.g. Pepsi, Coke)
- Gatorade

In addition to hypoglycemia, puppy parents should be on the look out for things that could possibly be caused by stress or otherwise, like the potential health hazards of issues such as constipation, dehydration, weight loss, non-activity, or diarrhea(potential coccidia parasites in intestines) that could prompt them for a potential Vet visit for the health of their puppy.
